Work to Proceed at San Bernardino & Alabama

After months of frustrating delays, Third District Supervisor Dennis Hansberger is pleased to announce that an agreement has finally been reached so construction can resume and San Bernardino Avenue can reopen.

On Tuesday, the Board of Supervisors approved an agreement with Mountain Grove Partners that permits Mountain Grove Partners to share the unforeseen additional costs, up to $630,672, to redesign and construct the Alabama Storm Drain Project around an unidentified underground electrical facility owned by Southern California Edison. Mountain Grove Partners will be constructing the second phase of the Citrus Plaza development in the Donut Hole.

"While I do not understand how Edison had a facility that nobody knew about, I am pleased that we finally worked out an agreement that will get this work finished, ending months of delay," Hansberger said. "I am frustrated that it took so long to resolve this, and I want this work finished as quickly as possible so we get the road opened."

Mountain Grove Partners plan to resume work this week.
